

IN THE ABSTRACT

Please replace the originally submitted Abstract contained in the application with the following Replacement Abstract, as follows:

---ABSTRACT

A radio frequency communications network system and protocol for allowing the dissemination of data to be shared by devices within a network. The invention is particularly useful when the devices are out of transmission range of each other. The network includes repeater devices located between the devices to manage a data transfer in the network. The invention also provides for data transfer management in the presence of collisions between conflicting data transmissions.---